v.

C.A. NO. C-04-687

ORDER DENYING MOTION FOR APPOINTMENT OF COUNSEL

This is a civil rights action filed by a state prisoner pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Plaintiff's motion for appointment of counsel is pending. (D.E. 102).

No constitutional right to appointment of counsel exists in civil rights cases. Wendell v. Asher, 162 F.3d 887, 892 (5th Cir. 1998); Akasike v. Fitzpatrick, 26 F.3d 510, 512 (5th Cir. 1994) (per curiam). A district court is not required to appoint counsel unless "exceptional circumstances" exist. Cupit v. Jones, 835 F.2d 82, 86 (5th Cir. 1987) (quoting Jackson v. Dallas Police Dep't, 811 F.2d 260, 261 (5th Cir. 1986) (per curiam)). Among the factors that the Court should consider are: "(1) the type and complexity of the case; (2) whether the indigent is capable of adequately presenting his case; (3) whether the indigent is in a position to investigate adequately the case; and (4) whether the evidence will consist in large part of conflicting testimony so as to require skill in the presentation of evidence. The court should also consider whether appointed counsel would aid in the efficient and equitable disposition of the case." Jackson, 811 F.2d at 262 (citing Ulmer v. Chancellor, 691 F.2d 209, 213 (5th Cir. 1982)); accord Norton v. Dimanza, 122 F.3d 286, 293 (5th Cir. 1997).

Upon careful consideration of the factors set forth in Jackson, the Court finds that appointment of counsel is not warranted. Regarding the first factor, plaintiff's claims do not present any complexities that are unusual in prisoner actions. Indeed, plaintiff has presented this issue capably to the Court.

The second and third factors are whether the plaintiff is in a position to adequately investigate and present his case. Again, plaintiff has thus far demonstrated that he is able to adequately communicate and file pleadings with the Court.

The fourth factor requires an examination of whether the evidence will consist in large part of conflicting testimony so as to require skill in the presentation of evidence. The issues and evidence anticipated at trial, if a trial is necessary, are not so complex that plaintiff cannot present them to the Court and a jury. Finally, there is no indication that appointing counsel would aid in the efficient and equitable disposition of the case. No “exceptional circumstances” exist that warrant the appointment of counsel at this time.

Accordingly, plaintiff’s motion for appointment of counsel, (D.E. 102), is DENIED.

ORDERED this 8th day of August 2006.
